ISRAEL

The mounting Israeli casualties in southern Lebanon and a growing feeling that little is to be gained from staying there any longer are generating heavy pressure on the Government to pull the army out faster than was planned.

The Israeli Cabinet is expected to hold an extraordinary session soon to set a date for the second stage of the three-stage withdrawal from Lebanon. The second stage, pulling back primarly from the eastern Bekaa front with the Syrians, will bring Israeli troops to within 10 to 15 miles of the border. This second stage is exected in April, after the snow melts, and the final stage in August.

Israel completed the first phase on Saturday by withdrawing from the greater Sidon area. At the CAbinet session on Sunday, Yigael Hurwitz, Minister Without Portfolio and a former Likud bloc member, proposed that the army leave Lebanon immediately.

Today Communications Minister Amnon Rubenstein and several Labor and Likud members of Parliament joined those calling for a speedier pullback.

HAVE YOU BELIEVE OUR REPORT?
SERIES #47
ISAIAH 53: 1&2

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a root out of dry ground.

He hath no form nor comiliness: and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

MALACHI 3: 1-12

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts.

But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' sope:

And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness.

Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and againt thoe that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts.

For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, Wherein shall we return?

Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? in tithes and offerings.

Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vince cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts.

And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts.

Patience.

Patience is one of the most blessed of all Christian graces. The word is mentioned 33 times in the New Testament and usually as an exhortation. I Thessalonians 5:14 says, "Now we exhort you, brethren, warm them that are unruly, comfort the feebleminded, support the weak, be patient toward all men".

The dictionary defines patience as capable of bearing delay and waiting for the right moment.

An oriental fable tells of a Chinaman who wanted a needle, but one could not be found. Later he discovered a crowbar and file in the other, the patient Chinaman said, "Now it is only a matter of time until I have a needle".

Patience, confident determination, and persistent labor will accomplish almost anything.

Year ago I read about a man pushing a baby carriage. Inside was a crying, screaming baby. The man pushing the carriage kept speaking softly: "Now be patient, Albert; be patient, Albert..."

A kind lady passing by took the baby from the carriage, laid him on her shouder, patted his back gently and said, "What's the matter with you, Albert? Are you hurting?" The man said to the lady, "He's not Albert. I'm Albert."

A man stopped in front of a drug store, went in and asked for some hiccup medicine. The druggist reached across the counter and slapped him in the face as hard as he could. The startled man paused a few moments and then repeated his request for hiccup medicine.

The surprised druggist asked, "Do you still have the hiccups?" "No", replied the man, "I never did have the hicups. My wife, out in the car, is the one with the hiccups." He certainly demonstratd patience.

Autobiography Of Sidney Poitier

"I am fascinated by dance and the preoccupation of youth in contemporary music and dance. I think it is representative of a national expression of the pleasure principle," says director Sidney Poitier, who took that fascination and created a story that he brings to the screen in Columbia Pictures "Fast Forward." John Veitch produces from a screenplay by Richard Wesley, based on a Story by Timothy March. Quincy Jones is executive music producer.

"Fast Forward" is a story of eight small-town teenagers with big-time dreams who leave home for New York to compete in a national talent contest.

This is the eighth picture Poitier has directed, the styles running the gamut from interracial confrontation to slap-stick to light comedy. With "Fast Forward," Poitier presents a dance musical with a strong story about young people who have big dreams and the courage to put themselves on the line to turn those dreams into reality.

Poitier describes "Fast Forward" by saying, "This is as much a picture about self-sufficiency as it is about dance.

It is a movie about people who have taken hold of their lives and taken responsibility. That is the most important thing. They ue dance to help mold their destination, to captain their own ship."

Poitier speaks from experience about learning to take responsibility and captain one's own ship. Born and raised in the Bahamas, he left home at 16 to try his luck in New York seeking better opportunities. The best that New York offered the young man from the tropics was freezing weather and work as a dishwasher. He joined the Army, trained as a physiotherapist, but nine months later figured out a way to get himself discharged and headed back to New York. There he accepted a job as a janitor in exchange for acting lessons at the American Negro Theatre.

His first professional role was in "Lysistrata," followed by parts in "Freight" and "Anna Lucasta" which led to his 1950 film debut in "No Way Out." Through such subsequent his as "Cry, the Beloved Country," and "Blackboard Jungle," he quickly established himself as an actor in demand.

Poitier went on to star in more than 30 movies, most notably "Band of Angels," "Something of Value," "Porgy and Bess," "The Defiant Ones," "A Raisin in the Sun," "Paris Blues," "Lilies of the Field," for which he won the Academy Award in 1963, "A Patch of Blue," "Duel At Diablo," "The Slender Thread," "To Sir With Love," "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?," "In the Heat of the Night," and "The Lost Man," which introduced him to his future wife, Joanna Shimkus.

And God Worked Special Miracles.

And God worked special miracles by the hands of Paul. so that handkerchiefs of aprons were brought from his body to the sick and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out of them. (Acts 19:11,12.

Evangelist, Paul Reed of Decateur, Georgia brings life to these words as he ministers to thousands.

In a recent Holy Ghost Revival at Eastsie Community church. Many were filled with the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Others were delivered from infirmities such as cigarette smoking and over eating. Still others came inquiring, what must I do to be saved? There were those who came in need of financial blessings and have confirmed that God does answer prayer.

Because of the vast needs for this type ministry during these last days, Evangelist Reed has committed to extend his stay. So it's Revival Time again.

Beginning Monday, Feb. 25, 7PM. nightly at Eastside Community Church, 4420 Portland Ave., is the place to be.

Dr. Alfred c. Davis, Sr., Pastor, and the Easts' of Family welcomes you. "If you come believing you'll be receiving your blessing".

"And when the day of Pentecost had fully come, they were all with one accord, in one place. "Acts 2:1

Come To Church Services

PSALMS 145: 1- 14

I will extol thee my God, O king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever.

Every day will I bless thee; and I willpraise thy name for ever and ever.

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; and his greatness is unsearchable.

One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

I will speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works.

And men shall speak of the might of thy terrible acts: and I will declare thy greatness.

they shall abundantly uter the memory of thy great godness, and shall sing of thy righteousness.

The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger and of great mercy.

The Lord is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works.

All thy works shall praise thee O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee.

They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power;

To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

THE REAL ATLANTA MURDER

When "The Atlanta Murders" hit television recently, the drama of fiction aimed at a hit Black integrity and Black leadership in an integrated setting. It was television at its worst.

Blacks who have provided Atlanta with political leadership in the last decade and Blacks who have emerged in "new" Black cities were stereotyped as incompetent administrations that have driven the best out of service with 'reverse discrimination" and retaliatory afirmative action programs. The fictional account of the murder of 29 young blacks between 1979 and 1981 let no facts stand in its way of indicting Black people's capability as leaders of White people and exhonerating Wayne Williams, in some instances, by omission.

The fact that Williams stopped on the bridge and started his car from a stopped position after a splash was heard in the river near the spot where another murder victim would soon show up was left out. As was the fact that sacks of clothes that police believed belonged to the victims were in his car when he was arrested.

Lee Brown, in charge of the investigation then, said that williams subsequently washed out his car scrubbed down his car and burned photographs before a search warrant was issued.

Some witnesses said they saw Williams with seven of the victims and, according to one, Williams was holding hands with one man.

More than 700 fibers from 12 victims match Williams' green bedroom carpet, a blue bathmat, carpeting from his car and threads from his bedspread. Dog hairs from the victims resemble hair from Williams' German shepherd dog.

All of this has moved former Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson to accuse Abby Mann, the writer, of producing "a set of lies and racist political statements." He said the film's key message is that "Black public officials and police officers were unable to handle the crisis and had to be rescued by Whites." Jackson's statement is a fact beyond a shadow of a doubt.

This kind of televised racism is more dangerous than the shuffling darkies on most situation comedies.

The saving grace, perhaps, is that in spite of the show's overwhelming sucess in mostly Black Detroit and WA. D.C., the rest of the country kept it out of the top 10 in the Nielsen race and ruined CBS's attempt to dominate the ratings with "The Murder of Black America."

OPPORTUNITY FOR THE POOR?

President Reagan's State of the Union message was eloquent in its promise of opportunity for all. The speech painted a rhetorically seductive picture of liberating "the spirit of enterprise in the most distressed areas of our country."

But the proposals mentioned in his speech, and the budget he has submitted to the Congress, just don't add up to the promises of opportunity. The State of the Union message touched on a number of familiar proposals, some of them worthy of support. Prime among these was the enterprise zone legislation which has been supported by a broad coalition including many advocates of minorities and the poor. While no panacea, enterprise zones is a worthwhile concept that should be passed. By cutting through the red tape and taxes that stifle small business development in poverty areas, enterprise zones could indeed result in an economic resurgence in some neighborhoods that creates new jobs.

But it's hard to see much opportunity in some other aspects of the Administration's program. It's doubtful that lower minimum wage scales, for example, will create more jobs for youth. The current law provides for employer exemptions from the standard minimum wage, yet it has not done much to cut black youth unemployment.

Tenant management of housing projects is a promising idea, provided tenant groups are equipped with technical assistance. But even if it works it would not do anything to ease the terrible housing crunch or help the homeless.

And education vouchers would simply undermine the public schools on which the poor must depend for their education.

It's not that the ideas presented in the State of the Union are good or bad; they just don't appear relevant to the real world facts of life faced by the poorest Americans.

Opportunity means a helping hand. The government provides lots of opportunity to the affluent -- its tax cuts have helped many to keep more of their wealth and to reap the rewards of the system. But the poor don't benefit from tax breaks -- in fact, they're paying more in taxes now than they were before those tax cuts. Federal intervention can help create opportunities through programs that improve education, train for jobs, and allow minimal standards of food, housing and health care. Unfortunately, the budget presented by the Administration takes opportunity away from those that need it.

There are new cuts coming on top of massive program cuts in the past four years. the budget proposes spending less on basic survival programs, less on subsidized housing and health care, less on child nutrition and school lunches. It would kill the Legal Services Corporation, which gives the poor access to the legal system. It would kill the work incentive program which helps welfare recipients prepare for jobs.

The Budget would kill one of the success stories of the war poverty, the Job Corps, which trains disadvantaged young people for jobs. It woud end urban development programs that create inner city jobs.

The budget's impact must be seen in the context of earlier cuts that reduced opportunities. And it must be questioned whether such cuts are justified in the face of ever-higher defense spending that even fervent supporters of a strong military are questioning. So there is a yawning gap between the promise of opportunity made in the President's State of the Union address, and the continued harrassment of the poor made in the Administration's budget.

An Independent View From Capital Hill

by

THE HONORABLE GUS SAVAGE
Member of Congress

The president's proposed federal budget for 1986 is a fiscal and ethical monstrosity not likely to survive the major surgery scheduled for it in congress.

This is not surprising since it was conceived by morally retarded parents and born without a heart. Consequently, it does not understand the needs of, and its benefits don't circulate to the vital working class, Black, and young parts of the American body politic. Therefore, I shall write against it, broadcast against it, and speak against it to the public-- and debate against it, lobby against it, and vote against it in congress. Specifically, I strongly oppose all three main aspects of Reagan's budget proposal: First of all, I oppose his proposal to decrease the amount to be spent on all America's domestic needs by some $41½ billion, including $16 billion from vital social services, jobs, income security, education, student loans, and housing programs. These cuts are bone breaking because, as you know, these programs had already been cut to the bone during Reagan's first term in office. Furthermore, Reagan seeks to abolish the Small Business Administration, mass transit aid, and Urban Development Action Grants.

Secondly, despite these unfair cuts, the proposed budget still would increase by $180 billion the federal debt, which already exceeds $1.5 trillion and for which he would pay in interest alone, in 1986, $142½ billion, the third largest component in the budget. Incidentally, the proposed 1986 deficit is approximately the same as the last recorded deficit, $186 bilion for fiscal 1984, not a reduction.

Thirdly, this deficit would be due to Reagan's proposed whopping $32 billion increase in our present record-high spending for war preparations, which I most strongly oppose. His proposed $286 billion in outlays for so-called defense in 1986 amounts to almost one third of his total proposed budget of $974 billion in outlays. This defense component even exceeds the amount budgeted for social security and medicare. It is the largest spending category in the proposed budget, $313 billion in expected outlays plus contracting authority for later payment. The total budget authority is $1.06 trillion.

In other words, for 1986, Reagan proposes to spend more than half of the anticipated federal revenue of about $800 billion for his so-called defense program plus interest payments to the wealthy on the debt this program causes. Moreover, the actual 1986 deficit that Reagan's budget would create could be much higher than his estimate if unemployment, inflation, or interest rates rise during the year, as they very well might.

Finally, just let me translate this into local terms. Take the City of Chicago, for example. Reagan's proposal could result in Chicago losing more than half its present $446 million in federal aid for housing, mass transportation, sewers and sanitation, urban and community development, and other such programs.

He proposes to deeply cut this amount while supporting El Salvador's uncontrolled and brutal military establishment with twice as much aid as he has proposed for Chicago. Furthermore, he proposes sharply increasing aid to Israel to $3.1 bilion-- that equals $8½ of your tax dollars each day of the year-four times the total present federal aid to chicago. Incidentally, El Salvador, Israel, and Chicago each has about the same number of citizens.

This budget illustrates the lopsided priorities of a reactionary Reagan administration that continues to punish the hungry and homeless, the unemployed, and small business that provide the greatest number of new jobs.

Reagan's proposed budget will have a devastating effect on the economic well-being of all cities and states because any decrease in federal aid requires a reduction in public services or increase in local and state taxes to compensate for the loss of revenue.

History And Traditions Of The United Negro College Fund , INC.

In the early 1940's, the long-struggling cause of private higher education for blacks was in a deep crisis. In the preceding twenty years, gifts from wealthy benefactors and foundations - lifeblood of private education - had been reduced by more than half. One by one, many former sources of support for the private black colleges and universities had dried up due to the Great Depression and the Second World War.

Yet the need for these schools had never been more pressing. They were the only private colleges in the South open to blacks. They were educating fully half of the blacks who were in college at all. They were developing leaders for the local and national communities, and they were among the very few common meeting grounds for blacks and whites in the South.

Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, the third President of Tuskegee Institute, thought long and hard about the problem of finances. In order to gather more information, he wrote to the presidents of other private black colleges to learn if their situation was as bleak as that of Tuskegee Institute.

This, indeed, was the case. Dr. Patterson publicized his findings in the January 30, 1943 Pittsburgh Courier. After reviewing the situation, he urged in his article that the private black colleges and universities "pool their small monies and make a united appeal to the national conscience." As Dr. Patterson recalled ten years later, in his opinion the black colleges had three choices: "to go out of existence entirely, to accept partial or total subsidy from public funds, or to unite in an annual appeal for current funds to the end of broadening the base of support while reducing costs of appeal promotion."

Dr. Patterson's idea became a reality after a year of further planning and development. The Unted Negro College Fund conducted its first annual campaign in 1944 with twenty-seven participating colleges and universities. Fund raising counsel advised the presidents that a nationwide appeal of the magnitude they were contemplating would cost $100,000. Though this sum was substantially beyond their financial resources, the presidents decided that as a gesture of confidence they would underwrite one-half of this amount out of their meager funds. They received the balance of $50,000 in equal portions from two foundatoins whose friendship for black education had been firmly established over the years: the General Education Board and the Julius Rosenwald Fund.

During its first campaign, UNCF received the support of many prominent people across the country. Franklin D. Roosevelt began a tradition (which continues to the present day) of support by the President of the United States. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., long a supporter of black higher education, publicly endorsed UNCF and chaired its National Committee. (This marked the first time that Rockefeller had allowed his name to be publicly associated with a charity.) Winthrop W. Aldrich, Chairman of the Board of Chase National (now Manhattan) Bank, was UNCF's first National treasurer, beginning a tradition that his predecessors at Chase have continued. And Walter Hoving, President of Lord & Taylor, served as UNCF's first National Campaign Chairman. The intimate involvement by the nation's top government and business leaders in the fundraising activities of the UNCF has continued through the years, and remains as one of the greatest assets of the organization.

The United Negro College Fund was a success from the very beginning. The first annual campaign in 1944 raised $765,000. This was three times what the member institutions had been able to raise in separate campaigns the previous year. The United Negro College Fund, it appeared, was here to stay.

During the remainder of the 1940's, UNDF's first Executive Director, William J. Trent, Fr., continued to give UNCF excellent leadership. Another key staff member during these years was Paul Franklin who served as UNCF's first national Campaign Director and was, therefore, the chief fund raiser. The UNCF staff was a small by present standards and was based almost totally in New York City. This was possible in part, because each member college president was required to spend thirty days per year organizing and running a local campaign for UNCF. Also, many volunteers willingly gave their time to advance UNCF's efforts, a factor that even today continues to hold down UNCF's fund-raising expenses.

The late 1940's witnessed two important innovations in UNCF's operations. One was the establishment of UNCF area offices with paid staff members beginning in 1948. The second innovation was the formation in 1946 of the national Alumni Council, the brainchild of James E. Stamps of Chicago. The Council marked the first time the alumni of several different schools joined together to raise funds cooperatively for all their colleges, rather than for their separate alma maters. The students at the UNCF member institutions of followed the example of the alumni and in 1958 organized the National Pre-Alumni Council of UNCF.
